

First Land Utilization Conference Called Nov. 19-21 At Chicago

PLAN ACTION TO GUARD VALUES OF U. S. FARMS

Farms Not Paying Production Costs Must Be Retired, Is View

Chicago (AP)—After 150 years without a formulated land policy the United States abruptly faces the need for a program to protect the economic and social values of its 300,000,000 acres in farms.

To this end Secretary Hyde of the department of Agriculture, and the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities have called the first land utilization conference in history to session here Nov. 19 to 21.

States have studied the subject but never before has the national government moved so broadly to regulate the use of public and private domain. From colonial days it has been assumed that all cultivable land was destined to be used to produce food and fiber and that the sooner it could be put to that purpose the better.

The conference is a frank refutation of that theory, an open admission that too much land is being cultivated and a signal that farms not paying the cost of production must be retired if relief for agriculture is to be effective.

The conference's recommendations are expected to form the base of state and national legislation to remedy overproduction, maladjustment of crops, tax delinquency and farm abandonment.

Secretary Hyde says the way has been pointed to by certain of the New England and Great Lakes states.

Wisconsin's Law

Wisconsin has a law enabling counties to take over tax delinquent lands and make forests out of them. New York is spending $2,000,000 a year to reforest waste lands. Of the 20,000,000 acres in New York 22,400,000 at one time was in farms. There now is only 18,000,000 which means that 4,000,000 acres have been retired. Governor Roosevelt says 20 per cent of the remainder should be turned into permanent forests and pastures.

Secretary Hyde says recent upheavals in the supply and demand of farm products throw new light on the need for land utilization.

On the demand side, displacement of work animals by power-driven machinery is removing the need for millions of tons of corn, oats and hay. Changes in diet are lessening the demand for food and increasing the demand for others. Export demand is narrowed by the recovery of European farm production from the effects of the war.

On the supply side technical changes are bringing great semiarid tracts into cultivation not only in the United States but also in Russia, Canada, Australia and Argentina. Labor-saving machinery is promoting the cultivation of low-yield areas. Production is outrunning consumption in much of the world.

Estimate of Needs

The fundamental need, Secretary Hyde says, is for an inventory of land resources, an estimate of food and fiber needs and an attempt to match output against requirements.

"We used to worry about the pressure of population on the food supply," Secretary Hyde said. "Now, we're beginning to worry about the pressure of the food supply on the population producing it."

"This change in point of view is one of the most significant changes that has occurred in years. It has at last brought discussion of the status of agriculture into the fore."

One of the main things Secretary Hyde wishes to avoid is the bringing of new land into farm production. While the department of the interior has agreed to discontinue reclamation of arid lands there still is the prospect that within the next 10 years some 2,000,000 acres will be added to the farm area in California, Arizona and Nevada by construction of Hoover dam in the Colorado river.

RECOMMEND "Y" WORK ON MODIFIED BUDGET

Modification of the Y. M. C. A. budget for the remainder of the association year and completion of membership work was recommended by the association board of directors' finance committee Friday afternoon. The directors now will have to approve recommendation of the finance committee. James A. Wood is committee chairman.

200 PERSONS ATTEND Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

Approximately 200 persons attended the reception for new members of the Y. M. C. A. last night at the association building. They saw several wrestling matches, swimming exhibitions, made use of the bowling alley, billiard tables, and other sports facilities. Dr. John R. Denvers of Lawrence college gave a short talk. The remainder of the evening was spent dancing.

MUSICAL PROGRAM FOR LIONS CLUB MONDAY

Appleton Lions will be entertained with a musical program Monday night at the weekly luncheon meeting at Conway hotel. A blind solist from Chicago will play.

COMMITTEE MEETS

The finance committee met at city hall Friday afternoon. Bills to be presented at the meeting of the common council Wednesday were discussed.

COMMISSION MEETING

Reports will be reviewed at a meeting of the city water commission in the city hall at 1:15 Monday afternoon.

M. G. Clark, valley scout executive was in Sheboygan Friday in conference with Harold Whinnfield, Sheboygan executive and other scout leaders on plans for annual council.

4 CONTRACT BRIDGE TEAMS ENTER FINALS FOR VANDERBILT CUP

New York (AP)—Four strong contract bridge teams moved into the finals of the Vanderbilt cup tournament today.

The qualifying teams were: Harold S. Vanderbilt, donor of the cup, R. J. Leibent, Gratz M. Scott, and Edwin H. Weitzler; Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson, present holders of the cup; Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Theodore A. Lightner; Philip Hal Sims, Willard S. Kern, Oswald Jacoby and David Burnstine; and the Cavendish club team consisting of Walter Malowan, John Wattheys, Howard Schenken and Sherman Stearns.

The Culbertson team won its semifinal match by 3,500 points from the Brooklyn Bridge club team. The Vanderbilt team beat Mrs. Philip Hal Sims, John Rau, Philip Farley and Louis H. Watson by 3,350 points to reach the finals. The team headed by Malowan defeated the Knickerbocker Whist club team by 300 points. The team headed by Slater's Hal Sims defeated the Knickerbocker Whist club team by 300 points. Of the 15 finalists, 19 are members of both the Cavendish club and the Knickerbocker Whist club. Of the remaining six, four are Cavendish members and two Knickerbocker members.

THREAT TO FARMER SEEN IN CONGRESS

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Addresses National Grange

Madison (AP)—Declaring that the next congress is likely to destroy rather than build, R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, called upon the National Grange in convention here today to rally to the support of advantages that have been gained for agriculture.

Mr. Dunlap said he believed an effort will be made to abolish the Agricultural Marketing act and to amend the tariff and the farm organizations should unite to withstand that attack.

"You may not agree," he said, "but I want to say that we have the best agricultural tariff that has ever been on the statute books. There will be a desperate effort on the part of city interests to get their food cheap. There may be an effort to abolish the tariff commission. In my opinion, the way to administer the tariff is through the commission."

Gov. Philip LaFollette told the convention that America must effect a redistribution of wealth before complete recovery from the depression may be expected. He quoted figures purporting to show that 504 individuals in the United States earn a yearly total income equal to that of 4,000,000 farmers.

The governor said the question to be settled is not what the president thinks, but what we think. "I for one do not believe the president is the source of all wisdom," he said. "If this country is to remain a republic there is no one man who is the sole receptacle of all wisdom. There are many prominent persons, including the president, who believe if you take a dollar out of the federal treasury to aid the present crisis it is a dose and must be secured. To take it out of local funds is a tax on property."

If taken out of the federal treasury it means that the federal government will have to raise it by income and inheritance taxes."

APPLETON WOMAN IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Mrs. Hazel Engleby, 29, Appleton, was granted a divorce by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court yesterday afternoon from her husband, Reid Engleby, 30, Appleton. She charged drunkenness. The case was not contested and Mrs. Engleby was given possession of a home and the furniture. The couple was wed March 6, 1927. Memoranda, Mich., and separated Nov. 4, 1931.

The H. M. Parkers family has moved from 322 N. Richmond-st. to their new home at 619 W. Third-st.

Mother Of Slain Youth Against Death Penalty

F. A. DONALDSON

Philadelphia (AP)—Mrs. Francis A. Donaldson, Jr., who brought two sons to manhood only to have them taken by death, has no desire to see Edwin H. B. Allen go to the electric chair for slaying her elder boy last Monday.

She asks only that "he be punished so that he never can forget the awful thing that he has done."

"Taking the life of Edwin Allen," she said yesterday, "will not bring back my boy to me."

At the same time the society matron gave her version of the misunderstanding which blighted the romance between her son, Francis A. Donaldson, III, and Miss Rose E. W. Allen, 13, debutante sister of Edwin.

Horace Allen, father of Rose and

ROSE ALLEN

Edwin, has said young Donaldson betrayed his daughter and that it was the Donaldsons who opposed the marriage. Mrs. Donaldson yesterday said Allen himself objected to the union at first.

"Mr. Allen thought Mr. Donaldson had married a domestic in his father's household," she said. "I straighten things out, my husband proved this to be untrue and Mr. Allen wrote me an apology. After that there could be no question of his daughter's marrying beneath her."

"I never understood that there was ever a definite refusal by Mr. Allen to the marriage. I certainly never heard of a refusal to the marriage on the part of my husband."

U. S. Prof Legal Advisor To Nanking Government

Geneva (AP)—A modest American professor, from Johns Hopkins university, is playing a most important technical and personal role in the drama of China's Manchurian case before the league of nations council.

He is W. W. Willoughby, professor of political science, legal advisor to the Nanking government and a recognized expert on Sino-Japanese affairs.

Professor Willoughby has been closely associated with the Nanking government for several years. He is a warm personal friend of Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese spokesman on the league council, and his most intimate companion.

The American professor and the smiling and nervous-looking Oriental diplomat are called internationalists. Dr. Sze draws, and every document he has been able to secure in recent weeks, bears the impress of Prof. Willoughby's experienced hand. Day and night he has been guiding the Chinese minister's diplomatic course.

They make a strong team, diplomatically, for Dr. Sze has a reputation for adroitness built up over a long career.

Willoughby's influence, however, extends beyond the legal and diplomatic field. During the past trying weeks Dr. Sze has been carrying a tremendous burden and has often grown melancholy and depressed with the task of representing 400,000,000 country-men in a serious situation.

The professor has a sense of humor and a fund of good stories. These, interspersed into gloomy ponderings over affairs in Mukden, Pientsin, Anganchi and Tientsin have done much to make the ambassador's life more comfortable.

DEMOCRATS EXPECT TO WIN TEXAS SEAT

Washington (AP)—The Democrats expect to capture actual control of the house, at a special election Nov. 24 in the Fourteenth Texas Congressional district.

With this seat they would have 215, a numerical majority of one in a house of 435 seats. The Republicans have 214, Farmer Laborites one, and a vacancy exists in both New Jersey and New Hampshire.

Democrats are pleased that Governor Sterling of Texas called the special election in time for the successor to the late Representative Harry Wurzbach, lone Republican from the district to participate in organization of the house Dec. 1.

They expect a comparatively easy victory, but plan an intense campaign to assure an additional vote for Representative Garner of Texas, for speaker of the house. Wurzbach took the seat in the Harding landslide in 1920. Although the district is preponderantly Democratic, he held it largely through personal popularity and his activity for the war military establishment at San Antonio.

The Democrats also hold high hope of taking the Fifth New Jersey district at a special election Dec. 1. It was vacated by the death of Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, Republican, but Democratic leaders point to the 10,000 majority piled up in the district by Harry Moore, their gubernatorial candidate, over David Baird, the Republican.

In primaries in this district will be held next Tuesday.

In the First New Hampshire district, the vacancy created by the death of Representative Fletcher Hays, Republican, is to be filled Jan. 5, too late for his successor to part in the house organization.

CALL ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of Branch No. 1, Aid Association for Lutherans of St. Paul Lutheran church, will be held at 7:45 Monday evening in the club rooms of the Insurance building. Officers will be elected and candidates for the board of directors of the home office will be voted on. A social hour will follow.

START BUILDING LARGE MAUSOLEUM EARLY IN SPRING

Structure to Cost Approximately $200,000, Representative Says

Construction of the new Riverside Memorial building to be erected by Lovell and Lovell, Chicago architects, at the northeast intersection of N. Owassa and E. Nevada-sts probably will get underway early next spring, according to A. D. Smith, company representative.

The structure, which will be erected at an approximate cost of $200,000, will be one of the most beautiful buildings in the state. A building similar to the one to be constructed here has been erected in Fond du Lac.

Between 35 and 40 Appleton families have contracted for crypts in the Riverside Memorial building. The structure will be designed for 550 crypts.

The history and development of the constantly increasing trend to mausoleum interment was recently traced by employees of the Chicago firm.

These men discovered that Europe, Asia, Africa—those far-off continents where man's history first began—furnish the first clue to the story of the progress of the human race towards a more permanent burial place.

Protected By Stones

Famed scientists, historians and archaeologists peering into the history of the mist of centuries past, reported the discovery of the La Ferrassie man and child (Neanderthals of the Palaeolithic Period) whose remains were found protected by a mound of stones.

They came further discoveries—proof that in the upper Palaeolithic period, progress had been made, and man had sought burial in the recesses of caves and the shelter of rocks. Then the Neolithic period—during that stage of man's development in which many more caves were used as tombs; and that these caves bore unmistakable signs of hewed chambers and passageways, proof again of man's desire to improve and enhance his burial sanctuaries.

Later came the Bronze Age when man's ingenuity and perception created a new type of tomb made of great flat slabs of rock supported on several uprights. Some are of enormous size, weighing tons. Some are crude—others roughly dressed to a semblance of geometric form first constructed individually, and later developed into a series of slabs forming passageways and providing multiple burial facilities. These tombs formed a crude but enduring burial building.

Known As Cairns

Sometimes made of rock, sometimes formed of rough hewn timbers, usually round or oval in shape and covered with earth in the form of a mound, these early burial chambers are known as barrows, or cairns. Finest examples occur in Britain, in Ireland, and among the Roman ruins fringing the Mediterranean.

The Chicago research workers then dug into the history of Egypt where some of the most amazing burial chambers were found. The earliest Egyptian tombs were low and flat, with a masonry entrance leading to the actual tomb hewed out of the solid rock below. The pyramids were in effect, giant "coffins" of royal tombs, colossal in size, regal in their architectural form and beauty. Entrance was usually gained through a small passageway, leading up and down and eventually winding its way to the interior sepulchral tomb, where reposed the mummified remains of the person or family in whose honor the tomb had been erected.

In the United States the popular trend towards the mausoleum is increasing every year, according to Mr. Smith. More and more, he says, the country's leaders, as well as many thoughtful citizens, are choosing crypt or private room interment in memorial buildings.

EXPERT REVEALS HOW TO ANALYZE BALANCE SHEET

Shows Contrast Between Various Set-ups in Financial Statements

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press

New York—The form which gives the balance sheet its name can best be elucidated by constructing an imaginary statement. Let us suppose this is the balance sheet of the U. S. Manufacturing Company as of July 1, 1931:

Assets—Plant, $40,000,000; Inventories, $5,000,000; Bills Receivable, $2,000,000; Cash, $3,000,000. Total, $50,000,000.

Liabilities—Capital Stock, $40,000,000; Bills Payable, $3,000,000; Surplus, $7,000,000. Total, $50,000,000.

In some respects the foregoing is an improbable set-up but it will serve the present purpose. It is the addition of the $7,000,000 surplus which makes the balance sheet balance. If we simply set down first the assets and then the liabilities, subtracting the total of the latter from the former, we would arrive at the same result, namely a surplus of $7,000,000, but it would not be in balance sheet form.

Now let us change the figures to read this way: Assets—Plant, $40,000,000; Inventories, $5,000,000; Bills Receivable, $3,000,000; Cash, $1,000,000; Profit and Loss Deficit, $1,000,000. Total, $50,000,000.

Liabilities—Capital Stock, $40,000,000; Bills Payable, $3,000,000; Bank Loans, $7,000,000. Total, $50,000,000.

If under the last set-up we subtracted the liabilities from the assets we would have a minus result of $1,000,000. That is shown by listing a deficit on the asset side. A surplus is not a liability, neither is a deficit an asset, but to construct a balance sheet the surplus is set down on the right hand of the statement and the deficit, if a deficit is indicated, on the left hand side.

Test On Monkeys Seen As Check On Infant Paralysis

New York (AP)—Making young monkeys too old for their age, two medical scientists at Columbia university have discovered a phenomenon which they hope may eventually lead to a powerful preventive weapon against infantile paralysis.

The scientists—Dr. Claus W. Jungblut and Dr. Earl T. Engle—found during their experiments a promising link between susceptibility to the disease and a lack of the potent hormones that originate in the anterior pituitary glands of human beings as well as many animals.

Their results have just been submitted in a preliminary report to the pediatric section of the New York Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Jungblut and Dr. Engle injected extracts from the anterior pituitary glands of sheep and rats into immature monkeys of an age similar to the juvenile period when human children are most susceptible to the scourge. Then they inoculated the monkeys with a strong dose of infantile paralysis virus from human beings.

Instead of dying as other monkeys had when subjected to the virus without a previous injection of the hormone extract, they resisted the disease entirely in some cases and developed only a passing attack of the paralysis in others.

And that wasn't the only result from the hormone injections: The immature monkeys, Dr. Jungblut and Dr. Engle observed, became twice their age in physiological maturity within a few weeks. A young monkey about 1 1/2 years old, for example, suddenly took on physical attributes of a mature monkey of three.

These hormones from the anterior pituitary gland that wrought such remarkable changes in the monkeys are sometimes referred to as the "master hormones" because they play an important role in regulating various gland functions in the human body, the doctors explained.

Although the two scientists characterized their work as preliminary experiments necessitating further research to determine the possibility of human application, their colleagues at Columbia university declared the tests to be of the utmost significance.

They pointed out that medical experts have already begun to perfect hormone extracts for clinical use in other fields of medicine. They suggested that it would probably be possible to develop a practically acceptable hormone extract that could be used in the prevention of infantile paralysis without the objectionable results obtained in the monkey experiments.

The experiments of the two scientists have been conducted at the Columbia medical center under the general direction of Dr. Frederick P. Gay, head of the bacteriology department.

Both Dr. Jungblut and Dr. Engle were engaged in medical research at Stanford university, Palo Alto, Calif., before coming to Columbia university in 1929.

Decrease True Valuation Of Outagamie County By $13,000,000

COUNTY BOARD GETS REPORT FROM ASSESSOR

Place Value on Real Estate and Personal Property of $111,037,448

The true valuation of Outagamie county as fixed by Leo J. Toonen, assessor of incomes, is $111,037,448 for 1932, a decrease of about $13,000,000 under 1931, when the real value of the county was placed at $124,037,448. Mr. Toonen's report was distributed at Friday's session of the county board.

It is on the real or true valuation of the county that the amount of the county taxes to be paid by each town, city or village is determined. The aggregate assessed valuation of the county, however, is $105,375,738. This figure includes an assessment of $34,000,496 for the city of Appleton but that figure has been reduced by 15 per cent by the county board of review to about $29,000,000. This reduction also applies to the general total for the county and reduces it to about $76,000,000. Last year the aggregate assessed value of the county was put at $124,037,448, or about $27,000,000 more than this year.

Thus the report this year shows a decrease of $13,000,000 in the real value of the county and a reduction of about $27,000,000 in the aggregate assessed valuation.

Appleton's real valuation of $49,958,520 is 44.92 per cent of the total 1932 county valuation as compared with a value of $38,552,925 or 44.42 per cent of the county total for 1931. This is an increase of about one half of one per cent.

The aggregate assessment of Appleton for 1932 is about $47,500,000, after the reduction of 15 per cent made by the board of review. This compares with an aggregate assessment for 1931 of $33,552,925. The true value of the city in 1931 was fixed at $55,272,960, or about $22,000,000 more than the aggregate assessment.

Aggregate assessed value of real estate in Appleton for 1932 is placed at $49,958,520, but this does not include the 15 per cent reduction, which places the aggregate valuation at about $42,000,000. The recommended or true value of real estate in the city is $44,576,000.

Personal property in Appleton is given an aggregate assessment of $1,315,375. But this also is subject to the reduction of 15 per cent which lowers it to about $1,118,000. The recommended or true value of personal property in the city is placed at $1,382,520, a reduction of $2,500,000 from 1931 when the value was $7,380,860.

Only one of the municipalities in the county shows an increase in true value and this is the village of Shiocton, which is raised from $37,724 for 1931 to $37,849 in 1932.

SMITH, HEINEMANN SPEAK TO STUDENTS

W. E. Smith addressed Roosevelt junior high school students Friday at the weekly assembly. His topic was "Seeing It Through." He advised students to continue with their education to the end.

In the new program plan for assemblies the students entered the auditorium in music played by the junior high school band under the direction of Jay Williams and the patriotic color guard was chosen from the Boy and Girl Scout troops at the school.

Judge F. V. Heinemann was the speaker at the Wilson junior high school assembly. After his talk on education, the students sang group songs under the direction of Dr. Earl Baker. McKinley junior high school did not have an assembly period this week because of Armistice day activities.

CHARGE THAT MOTORIST DROVE WITHOUT LICENSE

Harold Brautigan, Neenah, was arraigned in municipal court before Judge Fred V. Heinemann this morning on a charge of operating a car without a license. He was arrested yesterday by Fred Arndt, motorcycle officer. Police Chief George T. Prin told the court that Brautigan had been driving his car for more than a year without a license. He said Brautigan would secure a money order at the postoffice, paste the stub on the windshield, then cash the order and fall to send for his license. He said this method was repeated several times by Brautigan, who would then show the stub and claim that was evidence he had sent for a license. The case was adjourned until Monday.

BOARD STUDIES NEW PROBLEM OF TRANSIENTS

May Appropriate Fund to Salvation Army, Enlarging Program in County

A proposal whereby the Outagamie board would make an appropriation to the Salvation Army of Appleton and turn over to that organization the task of caring for transients of the county during the winter was placed before the county board this morning by Supervisors F. O. Smith of Hortonville and A. W. Leab of the town of Grand Chute.

The county board decided to call Salvation Army officials to a special meeting next Monday afternoon to discuss the matter in detail.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Leab said their suggestion was prompted by an investigation which led them to believe that their proposal would be the best solution to the problem. The county board had previously been asked in a resolution to instruct the sheriff to prepare the second floor of the jail to house transients. Later it was suggested that if there is not enough room there, the sheriff should also take over the county workhouse and use that to house these men. The resolution was prompted by complaints of police in Kaukauna, Little Chute and other villages, who claimed they are being taxed by the demands of transients for shelter. They pointed out that the county could handle such transients much easier than the individual departments.

Sheriff John Lappan told the county board that he is willing to take over the work but that he would need fumigating equipment and other material.

Army Is Framed

The two supervisors who made the new proposal this morning pointed out that they felt that the Salvation Army is equipped, trained and prepared to handle this type of work and that some plan could be devised which would result in having the work properly taken care of.

Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, presented her annual report this morning and the supervisors discussed a recommendation made by her that the county provide funds for fumigating toxin and toxin treatment for the children of the county to aid in the prevention of diphtheria.

Miss Klein told the board she thought that clinics could be held in the county and the total cost would not exceed $1,000. Supervisors Jansen and C. J. Burdick, Black Creek, urged the board to act on this matter because the prevention of disease, especially during this depression, is an important factor.

Mr. Leab said he did not question the need for the improvement, but that he felt the county should not expend any funds for work that it was not absolutely necessary. He said the condition of this road has existed for many years and that it could easily remain as it is for another year or two. He also pointed out that even though funds are not being appropriated especially for the work, that if there is a balance in any fund it should be kept. He said just because the county happened to have money was no sign it needed to be spent. He said if there ever was a time when the county needed to practice economy, this was it. He pointed out that tax-

DEATHS

HENRY V. FERGUSON

Henry V. Ferguson, 81, died Friday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. V. Young, 721 E. Alton-st, after a lingering illness. Mr. Ferguson, who lived for 50 years in Cedar Rapids, Ia., came to Appleton six years ago. Survivors are his daughter; three sons, Arthur E., Salmon, Idaho; Louis E., Evanston, Ill.; and Henry H., Cedar Rapids, Ia.; one sister, Mrs. W. K. Taylor, Valhalla, N. Y.; and nine grandchildren. The body will be taken from the Wichmann Funeral home to the Young residence Monday morning. At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon funeral services will be conducted by Dr. H. E. Peabody, after which the body will be taken to Cedar Rapids for burial.

MRS. ELIZA WEBSTER

Mrs. Eliza Maria Copeland Webster died at 11:15 Friday night at her home, 522 E. Pacific-st, after a lingering illness resulting from a fractured hip. She was born in Furness Falls, Ontario, Canada, on Oct. 25, 1844, and spent her girlhood in Smith's Falls, Canada. In 1871 she married Warren M. Webster, and moved to Theresa, N. Y. They lived there until 1883, when they moved to Appleton, where Mr. Webster opened the Webster planning mill, which he operated until his death in May, 1916. Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Gardner and Mrs. George, all of Appleton; one son, Mrs. Anna C. Hornebeck, Syracuse, N. Y.; and one brother, Harmon Copeland, Winnipeg, Canada. The body will be taken from the Wichmann Funeral home to the residence Sunday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at the home by Dr. J. A. Holmes at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, and burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

JOHN HOLTZ

John Holtz, 73, an employee of Kimberly Clark corporation for the past 27 years, died Saturday noon at his home, 113 John-st, Kimberly. He had been ill since Sunday with pneumonia. Born in Germany, Mr. Holtz came to America in 1904, settling in Neenah. He had lived at Kimberly for the past 14 years. Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers, William, Jr., Kenneth and Sharley. The body was taken to Bretschneider's Funeral home and funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

are so high now that many citizens can not pay them.

During the week the improvement on this highway would cost $15,000 and not $25,000, as estimated by the highway committee. Mr. Smith said that improvement should not be included in the work for next year.

The proposed improvement on this road would cut down two hills between which the road passes. In the one which is at the top of a sharp rise, there is only room for one car. Arnold Kautzer, chairman of the highway committee, told the board that in his estimation this improvement is one of the most outstanding needs on the county trunk highway system. He said that a dangerous traffic hazard exists at the point of the cut and that unless some steps are taken to alleviate the condition, that there would be a serious accident there and the county would face a lawsuit because of its negligence.

Supervisors Jansen and T. H. Ryan, Appleton, also supported the highway committee.

Only three supervisors, Leab, Smith and Wesley Sherman, Seymour, voted for Leab's motion to lay the matter over until November, 1932.

The board this morning also instructed the county surveyor to survey the county boundaries and make a complete record of his work. This was done when the board's attention was called to the fact that original records showing the county's boundaries are missing.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER PREDICTED FOR SUNDAY

The first discouraging weekend weather forecast in several weeks was made by the weatherman Saturday. In past weekends ideal fall weather prevailed, but tonight and Sunday Appleton and vicinity is in for a soaking.

Slickers, rubbers and umbrellas are in order for the next 24 hours, the weatherman says. Showers will fall tonight and tomorrow and the mercury is due for a rise.

Similar predictions have been forecast through the middle of the week as shifting in the east and north-east, a good indication that wet weather will continue.

At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 23 degrees above zero, and at noon it registered 45 degrees above zero.

It is considerably warmer in the central and western portions of the country, but it is snowing generally over western Canada this morning. Showers are expected in this section tonight and Sunday, with rising temperature.

FOOT HEALTH

By GEORGE C. DAME

Statistics show that seven people out of every ten people have foot troubles of one sort or another, an appalling fact when one considers the discomfort that is being endured, the pleasures of society, the benefits of activity that are being denied these millions. And to think that it is needless pain, needless loss!

Lack of care is at the bottom of it. So much time and attention given to the care of the hands, the face and the hair, so little to the feet, when one's ability to go about working, playing, doing things, much of one's enjoyment of life depends upon these wonderful pieces of mechanism.

Nerves Send Warning of Foot Conditions

In the body of each of us there is a nervous system something like the branches of a tree—larger nerves that correspond to the big branches, and smaller and yet smaller nerves that go out from these like the little branches and tiny twigs. The tiniest nerves in our body are so very small that they can't be seen with the naked eye, and there

BOARD TURNS DOWN REPORT OF ASSESSOR

Supervisors to Ask Explanation from Leo G. Toonen Next Week

The county board this morning refused to act on the board of equalization's report, which embodies an assessment of the county as prepared by Leo G. Toonen, assessor of incomes, until Mr. Toonen appears before the board to explain his figures. Mr. Toonen was not in the city today and the supervisors decided to lay the matter over until next Wednesday, when it will be taken up as a special order of business.

Refusal to act on the equalization committee's report followed the explanation by the committee that its report was merely taken from Mr. Toonen's assessment figures.

Supervisor Sylvester Esler, Kaukauna, a member of the committee, said that the county is wasting money by paying this committee. He said the assessor pays little or no attention to the committee's recommendations and that the committee merely acts as a rubber stamp to the assessor. He said the committee met several times and recommended to the assessor that the assessment for the entire county be cut 10 per cent. He said the assessor disregarded this recommendation, however, and reduced the assessments of the towns 10 per cent, the city of Appleton about 7 per cent, and the village of Little Chute less than 2 per cent, and the city of Kaukauna about 1 per cent.

When asked for an explanation, Supervisor Esler said, the assessor told the committee that he thought his figures were correct. The committee then repeated its request for a blanket reduction. Mr. Esler said, but Mr. Toonen made up his report and had it printed with his original assessments.

It has cost this county about $150 to have the board of equalization meet," Mr. Esler said, "and it is merely money wasted because the committee cannot accomplish anything. We are merely rubber stamps."

Supervisor Jansen attacked the state law which gives the assessor power to make these assessments without advice of the committee. He said that if the facts as stated by Supervisor Esler regarding the reduction of his village's assessment less than 2 per cent, then he intends to pay his taxes under protest this year and challenge the right of the assessor to set the assessment without advice.

It was on motion of Supervisor A. W. Leab, town of Grand Chute, that the board decided to lay the committee's report over until Wednesday.

GIRLS PERFORM STUNTS AS PART OF INITIATION

If Appletonians saw queer creatures scurrying through the downtown section Thursday, girls with their costumes in side out, with patched and padded gymnasium outfits, with their long tresses in kid curlers or someone fishing from a College-ave curbstone there is no cause for alarm. These were initiates into the Girls Athletic association at Appleton high school going through their informal initiation tricks. Each girl received a piece of paper with instructions how to dress for the afternoon. The formal initiation was held last night in the school gymnasium.

MAIL LETTERS FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Outagamie-co Chapter Hopes to Secure 800 Members in Annual Campaign

Approximately 1,500 letters were mailed to Appleton residents Saturday in the voluntary mail campaign of the Outagamie-co chapter, American Red Cross. It is expected that 800 persons will subscribe to the organization in this city, according to the campaign committee.

In the event that the mail canvass is not successful, the chapter will organize its forces for a personal solicitation.

At the present time the treasury of the Red Cross chapter is exhausted, most of its funds being used to aid Indians in the Oneda reservation last winter. The chapter spent $685 for food and clothing to care for approximately 75 families of 200 persons over a period of about seven weeks.

$365,000 PUT IN BUDGET BY SCHOOL BOARD

A budget of $365,000 for 1932 was adopted by the board of education at its meeting at Lincoln school Friday evening. This amount is the same as the 1930 budget, but $20,000 less than that of 1931. Last year the board originally asked for $400,000, but upon request from the common council, cut it to $385,000.

Recommendation also was made that the city again place $10,500 in the budget for music in city schools. This is the same amount as in other years.

The board will have to borrow $4,000 on Dec. 1 to pay salaries. This is the latest date on which the board ever borrowed money, it was said.

Committee to Meet

A meeting of the committee of 18, which includes citizens at large, school board members, and educators will meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, it was reported. The committee, which is studying the school building situation in Appleton, was appointed about a year ago. Tuesday will mark its first meeting.

A gate in the N. Oneda-st Drive-way of Lincoln school will be closed when school is in session, barring automobile owners from using the grounds for parking, it was decided. The city street department will erect the gate.

Little Theatre Guild was granted use of the high school and junior high auditoriums on evenings when not used otherwise. The Fifth ward voters club was granted use of a room in the basement of Fifth ward school, and boy scouts were allowed

JUDGE TO SENTENCE YOUTHS ON NOV. 20

Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court has set Nov. 20 at the date for sentencing of William Van Gompel, town of Vandenberg, and Henry Mitchell, Appleton, on statutory charges. Van Gompel was found guilty by a jury several weeks ago and Mitchell was found guilty by a jury yesterday afternoon. The two men have been released on bonds of $500 each pending sentence. They were arrested on complaint of two town of Vandenberg girls. They charged the men attacked them during a ride home from a dance hall in Oneda.

ed use of the high school gymnasium on Thursday nights.

The education committee reported that county doctors have agreed to give pupils physical examinations again this year. Drs. E. F. Mielke, R. V. Landis and G. T. Hegner have been named on a committee to work with school health authorities, H. H. Heible of the high school and B. J. Roban, city superintendent of schools.

The following resolution pertaining to tutoring outside of school was adopted:

"Be it hereby resolved: That hereafter school credit for summer school attendance or private tutoring on the part of public school pupils be granted by Appleton school authorities only if said tutoring or summer school attendance meets with the approval of the appropriate school principal and the superintendent of schools.

"Be it further resolved: That the board of education and the school authorities have not officially authorized any person or persons to act as tutors of public school pupils. Where there is any doubt in the mind of the school executives concerning the nature and quality of such courses tutored, he or she may require the pupil concerned to satisfactorily pass an examination in the subject or subjects in which school credit is expected.

Adjournment was taken to next Friday evening at which time persons interested in an instrumental music program for school children will address the board.

RAILROADS AND MOTOR TRUCKS

The complaint of the railroads against the inroads of unregulated truck competition has recently brought to light some interesting figures.

In reply to a request of Senator Couzens, a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission discloses that the amount of freight tonnage carried by motor trucks in comparison to railroads is surprisingly low.

In 1929 steam railways handled 75.8 per cent of the freight traffic of the country, inland waterways and Great Lakes 16.5 per cent, pipe lines 4.9 per cent, interurban 2.5 per cent, and other forms 0.5 per cent. For steam railways, statistics are reasonably accurate, being obtained from data within the files of the commission. Other figures are estimates and therefore somewhat uncertain.

The percentages for trucks and pipe lines have probably increased somewhat during the past two years as these methods of transportation continue to press their fight for traffic.

At the same time the commission takes into account that the bulk of the ton-miles hauled by the railroads is of low grade while the reverse is probably true of motor trucks, so that the per cent of freight revenues obtained by trucks is probably greater than indicated by the above percentages.

But figures, unless understood and carefully and correctly applied, may become very misleading. Every industry requires a certain amount of business to cover its operating expenses, business that must be acquired and taken care of before the industry even commences to make a profit. Until that mass of work is obtained the industry is in reality a losing venture. Only after that load is gained can profitable business be transacted.

PUBLIC OPINION AND WAR

One thing the present Manchurian crisis is bound to do. It will go a long way in determining if "world public opinion" can control an international situation rapidly developing into a state of war. All the machinery for maintaining peace among the nations as set up since the World war is about to face its most critical test.

The sponsors of world peace movements have been divided into two distinct schools of thought. One school has rigidly upheld the doctrine of moral suasion while the other has steadfastly held to the theory that nothing less than the threat of joint armed action by neutrals can deter embittered nations from war.

In the discussions at Paris which gave birth to the League of Nations, this division of opinion on the use of armed as opposed to moral force was a paramount issue. The very remote possibility of joint military action against an aggressor was sufficient to keep our own country out of the league.

The implement of the Kellogg-Briand pact is moral force entirely and the American administration is proceeding under the assumption that it will be effectual in the present crisis.

The riddle of the Far East is perplexing. To expect the League of Nations or the Kellogg-Briand agreement to jump into the maelstrom in Manchuria and dig up a peace treaty in short order is to fail to recognize the complexities of a situation involving two ancient civilizations. Yet no more complex perhaps, than many other situations which hold the threat of war.

The stage is set, therefore, to determine if any one or any two nations are ready to defy world opinion which has been solidly mobilized on the side of peace.

The manner in which this question is settled will have its effect on all future plans and formulas for the abolition of war.

STRAIGHT FROM THE BAY OF NAPLES

Some New York residents of Italian blood who seem to be satisfied enough with this country but do not like the way Mussolini is running Italy, announce that they will make a demonstration against Dino Grandi, Italy's foreign minister, when he lands in this country on the 16th for a conference with American officials.

These people apparently will get a lot of deep satisfaction in making or trying to make it unpleasant for others.

They will become thrilled if they can shake their fists, shout imprecations, jeer, hiss and throw savage glances or something worse at a man who happens to come here as an official representative of their homeland.

As a matter of fact they are, despite what school learning they may have, showing the darkness of their ignorance and incapacity.

Rude manners confirm the lack of balanced or developed mental processes more than anything else. The true democrat does not find it necessary to give way to the animal capers of moronism. And a mob is but multiplied ignorance because it has, as Rivarol once said, "many heads but no brains."

And yet these people are evidencing a trait that distinctly marked their ancestors during the turmoil of the Middle Ages. Then, as leaders of those days wrote, they often preferred death to capture though their captors might not kill them, for they knew they would be tied up in a market place while the jeering crowds milled and squirmed about them and yelled taunting defiance as they heaped fulsome abuse upon them. One of the favorite methods of humiliation was to dress a captive up in the skin of an ass, a disgrace from which his spirits seldom recovered.

Of course, the proposed demonstration in this country will not be tolerated. We need not be cynical with Beaconsfield and say, "In politics nothing is contemptible." Instead we must try to make our politics decent enough to invite admiration. That can never be accomplished by sticking out tongues or thumbing noses at others.

And yet this sort of an outburst may lead the American to believe with the historian who wrote that "There are countries in which it would be as absurd to establish popular governments as to abolish all the restraints in a school or to unite all the straitjackets in a madhouse."

This sort of procedure rather makes our sympathy go to Mussolini and the Fascisti for if it is a sample of the sort of politics that is popular under the ruddy glow of Vesuvius no wonder the freedom of the individual has had to be suppressed.

SPELLING IN BOSTON

To have intimated that Boston was weak on spelling would have aroused the wrath and deep resentment of that center of culture.

But the unbelievable has happened. Discovery is made that a tablet recently placed in the state house commemorating the recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor, contains two misspelled words. The words "conspicuously" and "intrepidity" appear on the tablet as "conspicuously" and "intrepidity."

The error caused such a commotion that the adjutant general's office has started an investigation to determine the parties responsible for disrupting Boston's claim to preeminence in the field of mental cultivation and learning.

What the penalty will be for these malefactors is unknown, though it might include a compulsory return to Harvard to complete an imperfect education. The shocked sensibilities of the city of the high brows will doubtless demand the extreme in punishment.

Incorrect spelling is indefensible. In general there is too much agreement with the doctrine of the Philistines, that it is a poor man or woman who cannot spell a word more ways than one. But applying this doctrine to memorial tablets designed to stand in perpetuity, is too much even for Bostonians.

PROHIBITION agents should be more careful where they dump moonshine mash . . . they did it up in Shawano county, right out in a pasture where horses and cows were wont to graze . . . and the horses and cows and chickens, too, had themselves the biggest whoopee of their careers . . . there is no mention of instances where the horses went over and kicked heck out of the tractor and the family flivver although the roosters are reported to have attacked the windmill . . . but there's nothing much more weird than a handful of animals and the animals full of hooch . . .

A lad in Chicago is accused by four young women as being the father of their children. Quite a predicament, but his lawyer may get him out of it on the grounds that he was helping to end the depression.

Yeah, he worked in a baby carriage factory.

Two University of Wisconsin students sampled a large quantity of Madison gin and went out to stage a holdup. Which illustrates the superiority of Appleton.

A quantity of Appleton gin makes people want to go around giving away five dollar bills. Sure, Tillie, only they don't have any five dollar bills.

Wish Someone Would Go Nutty Around Here

Bringing to mind the fellow who went up in an airplane and threw fifty dollar bills over the side and has been sent to an asylum.

But maybe he was just an acute victim of this spend-now-and-bring-back-prosperity campaign.

An Open Letter to the C. E.

Dear C. E.:
Inasmuch as the boss has told us we can go to Madison today to pay tribute to our great University at its homecoming festivities we are leaving early in the morning. Which probably makes you want to ask, "Well, when are you going to get the Monday column in?" But we were just coming to that. As city editor you are probably very interested in getting the newest news. Now, since we're going to Madison, we no doubt will have a great deal of news to tell the public and if we write the Monday column before we go, the news will be pretty old by next Tuesday. So, in order to follow out your policy of news while it's hot, we will not get the Monday column done until Sunday. You will find it neatly folded, on your desk Monday morning, all fresh and ready to cheer you up. The linotype operator may want to shoot a couple of us, but after all it's all in the interests of better journalism.

P. S.: We almost forgot. We have to get our suit pressed and our shoes shined before we go.

Now they're hunting wolves in airplanes out on the farms of Nebraska. It's getting to be so a poor wolf has to move to town to get any peace.

HOLD THE FORT

Those who run away from care
Find new troubles they must bear.
Those who seek a pang to dodge
Soon with bittererills must lodge.
Wherever the coward hides
Grave anxiety abides.
Those who fear the foes they see
Unto greater dangers flee.
Foolish men who think afar
Peace and true contentment are Merely change the ill they know
For a heavier weight of woe.
There's no safe and sheltered place
Unto which mankind can race
Leaving fearful fear behind.
He who seeks for peace of mind
Will not find it anywhere
Trying to evade a care.
Peace, security and pride
Only with the brave abide.
Those who run from trouble's blow
Into failure's camp must go
And must suffer to the end
Hurts that time can never mend.

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 12, 1921
The United States had definitely proposed to the Washington conference a naval holiday and the limitation of naval armament, chiefly by cessation of building and the scrapping of obsolete ships.

Mrs. G. H. Peerenboom was to leave the following day for the west coast to spend the winter with her daughter in Portland and other relatives in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. R. W. Ebbesen was surprised by 25 relatives and friends on her birthday anniversary the preceding evening at her home, 816 Washington-st.

One of the very few timber wolves ever shot in Outagamie was on display in the window of an Appleton store. It had been killed near Medina by Edwin E. Brown.

John C. Ryan had been appointed a member of the educational committee of the Wisconsin Poultry Breeders association by J. F. Marlin, President.

Mrs. A. J. Hall, 921 Seventh-st., entertained the previous Thursday evening at a farewell party for Mrs. Ray Oakes, Thorold, Canada, who had been visiting friends in Appleton.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, Nov. 17, 1906
Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scherke entertained a number of friends at a pleasant evening at their home on Second-ave. in honor of the birthday anniversary of their son, Norman.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoffman returned the previous evening from their wedding trip of a week, part of which was spent with relatives in Milwaukee.

Miss Anna's Milburn left that morning for Fond du Lac where she was to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Starnby for the next two weeks.

Mrs. Jacob B. Loefer, Fond du Lac, formerly of Appleton, was in Appleton as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Sower.

Miss S. M. Scherke had come to Chicago to take up her position at the city's personal college.

Personal Health Talks
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE HEALTH EXAMINATION BUSINESS

Theoretically a periodic health examination is a fine thing for every body, especially the doctor who makes the examination, if a doctor does so. Practically, in my judgment, such examinations are worth the trouble and the expense ONLY when your own physician examines you or supervises the various tests or special examinations involved, just as he would have charge of any special tests or investigations which might be required in case of some obscure illness.

I have always maintained, and never with greater conviction than right now, that the practice of medicine is strictly an individual, personal, private service, and no firm, company, institute, clinic, gang, group or coterie can possibly compete with the doctor who practices under his own name and of course, assumes all the responsibilities which entail.

Since the agitation for periodic or annual physical or health examinations commenced various more or less questionable corporations or organizations have entered upon the practice of this department of medicine in defiance or with connivance of the law—for in no state or province is a license to practice medicine granted to any corporation or impersonal body and it is illegal to practice without a license. Some of these questionable concerns practicing in the periodic physical examination or diagnostic field are expressly organized or incorporated for this purpose. Others are primarily engaged in the insurance business, but they add so-called health examination service, often at no apparent cost to the sucker (if he imagines these firms are philanthropic) but for the sake of keeping a line on the sick and incidentally keeping the staff of doctors hanging around the home office occupied.

Here is an instance out of hundreds on which I base my belief that these so-called health surveys are not worth the price unless they are made by your own doctor in his own way:

Dear Dr. Brady:
Have just received a report from (a corporation in interstate commerce) that every part of my body is satisfactory, with the exception that my urine contained 15 per cent of . . . well it contained something or other, never mind what, but I'll say it was pretty meaningless to me. All this sucker got for his ten, twenty or thirty bucks was a little package of worry and anxiety. I wonder what he did with the package? Well, for a time he'll run around in little circles and write off to a few long-distance oracles to learn what it means. Finally he will either give up in disgust or else come to his senses and consult a physician, as he should have done in the first place, if he thought he needed a health examination or health assurance.

But the people still like to be humbugged, and these health examination institutes or organizations are providing just what the public wants.

In the long run it is cheaper, and certainly healthier, to go to your own doctor, or at least to go to a doctor who has enough self-respect and moral courage to practice under his own name, when you have any doubt whatever about the state of your health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Asparagus

Soon after eating asparagus I invariably notice a characteristic odor from the urine. Is it harmful or an indication of anything wrong with the kidneys? (B. J. O.)

Answer—No, that is normal.

Whitfield's Ointment
I want to thank you for your formula for Whitfield's ointment, it cured my husband's athlete's foot within a week, and he had been doctoring to no avail for several months. (Mrs. C. A.)

Answer—Whitfield's ointment is an excellent remedy for ringworm of the feet. It is to be applied each night for one week, then rest a week, and then another course of treatment if it is necessary. The formula is as follows:

Salicylic acid . . . . . 10 grains

Benzole acid . . . . . 25 grains

Soft petrolatum . . . . . 2 drams

Cocoon oil, enough to make the whole measure one ounce.

Dr. Whitfield (London skin specialist) later suggested a liquid for use in the daytime:

Benzole acid . . . . . 1 1/2 drams

Salicylic acid . . . . . 1 dram

Acetone . . . . . 1 ounce

Diluted alcohol, enough to make the whole measure four ounces.

Criticizes Neenah Justice

Editor Post-Crescent: In reading over the Neenah news of your paper of today I came across an article which fairly made my blood boil.

The article I refer to was this: "James Doyle, Escanaba, Mich., was sentenced Wednesday to 30 days in Winnebago jail by Justice George Harness after pleading guilty of vagrancy. Doyle was arrested upon complaint of housewives who charged he was begging."

Neenah, a city with a reputation of being the wealthiest city in the United States for its size, to pull off a stunt like this and have a poor vagrant sentenced to thirty days, for the mere fact that he was hungry and begged for a bite. And this on the anniversary of Peace Day. For shame.

Is your city so proud that a poor fellow who is down and out, expects a helping hand in your city without incurring a thirty day sentence upon himself?

On this same page of your paper a fellow from Neenah pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery with intent to do bodily harm. This fellow received a suspended sentence for putting a citizen of Neenah in Theda Clark hospital for several days. If this is the justice which is dealt out in your city, I don't wonder the state of Wisconsin and the city of Neenah were justified in the wrangle they had with your city over establishing a joint court for the Twin Cities.

Who are these housewives who would cause a poor fellow, who is no doubt, down and out through no fault of his own, to be cast into your city jail for thirty days? Are they wives of the aristocrats of your city? I very much doubt it. Are they wives of the middle class or the poorer class of your city?

Are these days, when many of our citizens are apt to fall almost any day, due to lack of work or jobs and are the winter is over, probably find twenty-five per cent of your population in the same circumstances as this poor vagrant finds himself. I repeat, are these days, to hold a hardened heart toward a poor misfortune who hangs.

How many of these same housewives have not taken part in drives for relief and drives for the poor and have sent out their husbands on Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, church, hospital and the Lord knows what other drives just for the publicity they get out of it and yet when a poor unfortunate rags on the back door asking for a bite immediately call the police and have him cast into jail.

The great thing today is charity, and the greatest place to show this is first at home.

I'm not a crank who is trying to find fault but certainly do not approve of the method used in the city of Neenah in administering justice. And Neenah, the wealthiest city in the United States in size. Shame on you.

Little Chute, Nov. 13, 1931.

TWO PLAYS ARE PRESENTED BY CHURCH GROUP

The semi-tragic theme of Susan Glaspell's one-act masterpiece, "Trifles" and the clever humor in George Kelley's, "The Flattering Word" formed a well balanced dramatic program Friday evening at the First Methodist church. The two plays were presented by the Wesleyan Players under the direction of Mrs. John Engel, Jr.

"Trifles" relates the story of a woman's life that has been saddened and repressed. This character makes no appearance in the play. The action of the piece takes place after the strange death of the woman's husband. Through the "trifling and fussing" of two neighbor women the parts taken by the Ralph Busse and Miss Betty Meyer, the motives of the crime, and the pathos in the life of the unseen woman is portrayed. Others in the cast include Wilmer Krueger, Russell Wichmann, Arthur Smith.

The lightness of the second play, "The Flattering Word," is achieved by the clever lines of Mr. Kelley, who ridicules the condemnation of the theater by the church. The gossipy nature of Mrs. Zooker, taken by Miss Esther Miller, presents the comedy in the play. Robert Bonini took the part of the uncouth pastor, Miss Dorothy Davis, the wife who still enjoys the theater. Miss Dorothy Briggs played the child role of Lena. Mrs. Zooker's daughter, Earl Miller, as Eugene Teab, the prominent dramatic star, was the central figure of the play.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. McKee, presented a musical costume skit, "Schooldays" as an interlude feature between the two plays.

Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. A. J. Koch, Mrs. Oscar Bellinger and Robert McCarter. Schafkopf prizes went to Mrs. Edward Reider and George Jackson; dice prizes, Mrs. H. J. McCarter, Will Damrow and Mrs. E. J. Overesch.

Deal With Children By Using Tact

BY ANGELO PATRI

Harry got a new sweater. For ten days or more he had been looking at it through the glass windows of the big store on Main Street. Finally he persuaded his mother that it was just the thing for him and he carried it home the proudest boy in the neighborhood. Monday morning he called downstairs, "Ma, can I wear my new sweater to school? It's kind of chilly."

"Yes, I suppose so."

Harry came down to breakfast arrayed in the new sweater. It was striped round and round, broad gray stripes alternating with crimson ones. On the gray stripes were little figures of men and horses worked in red and green and on the crimson stripes were the same little men and horses worked in gray and orange. It was a gay sweater, look at it any way you liked. The back was as gay as the front and that was something. Other fellows had things worked on their sweaters but only in front.

All went well until Miss Terry inspected the class for assembly. She halted beside Harry with a gasp of dismay. When she found her breath again she said, "Harry Jay Jones, what do you mean by coming to class in your sweater when you know you are supposed to wear a white blouse? Fall out. You can't appear in assembly in a sweater and you KNOW IT."

Harry fell out of line. He shut his lips grimly and glared into Miss Terry's angry eyes. "Why are you looking at me like that? Such looks are just as bad as speaking right out. Get that sweater off by the time we come back. Hang it in the wardrobe. Class mark time, march."

Harry went to his seat in a tearing rage. He had been affronted before the whole class. Worse. His precious sweater, the handsomest sweater in the whole school, had been abolished with a wave of an unkind hand. Well, we'd just see about this. A fellow could wear his sweater if he wanted to. I just guess he could.

"Class ready, Sit. Whr. What's this? Harry Jay Jones, do you MEAN to tell me that you still have that sweater on? Go at once and take it off. At once."

Harry sat still, his mouth set in that firm line. He wouldn't take off that sweater, not if she killed him. She could kill him and then she'd see what his father and mother had to say about it.

But the teacher didn't kill him. She looked hard at him for a few seconds, then turned to her work and the class was soon very busy. They had arithmetic and spelling and meaning and use and language and penmanship and reading and geography and never once did the teacher look at him or seem to know that he was alive. At noon she gave him a note to take to his mother that said, Harry could not wear his sweater in school. Mother would like to know why he couldn't. Wasn't it a perfectly fine sweater?

It is better to avoid issues about sweaters. A tactful understanding teacher knows how to get around sweaters and bare legs and powdered noses and all the others eccentricities of childhood. And mothers ought

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SUE knew now of whom the sketch that she had seen in Arnold's portfolio of pictures reminded her. Nancy Becker! It was Nancy . . . and it wasn't. The same brooding mystery of brooding eyes, that seemed to be so open at the same time that they were so secretive. The old exotic charm, Nancy certainly didn't wear her hair that way. Maybe she had once.

Sue knew that her mental comments were ridiculous. But just the same she had a sense that she was about to step into the second act of a very good play.

She was so interested that she didn't think about Jack's losses. She had made up her mind, before her marriage, that she would be good sport about everything. Jack lost everything he had . . . and it wasn't much . . . in the stock market, she would laugh. If he carelessly lost smaller sums get away . . . well, men didn't. Like women who criticized and lectured them. Besides, she didn't want money. Just Jack.

"I'm no end sorry that I made such a fool of myself tonight," he was saying. "One hundred bucks. Gee, Sue, that's a good piece of money."

Sue laughed. "Just be glad that you didn't leave the losing up to me. Think how much worse it would have been!"

"Why don't you lecture me on my morals?" His arm slipped across her shoulders and pulled her closer.

"Because I adore your morals just as they are."

Suddenly Jack changed the conversational trend.

"I wish I could figure out why Harry and Corrinne weren't invited tonight. Joe knows Harry as well as she does me. It isn't like her to leave them out, especially when we're staying there, and they know we are."

Nancy's face came floating between Sue and the dark road ahead. Could there have anything to do with it? Corrinne's not.

"Corrinne is having a party of her own," Sue heard herself saying. "It's to be just before we leave. And she's asking Joe and her husband, I think."

"Sue, are you sure you aren't thinking I'm 17 kinds of a fool to get myself involved into a game with sharks?" he asked again. "Joe is one, all right. So is her husband."

Sue was smiling to herself as she answered. Anything Jack did would be right in her eyes. Forever. She knew it. People didn't have to have quarrels about things. All you have to do was to approve of each other. It seemed so simple, riding along in the early autumn night. So easy.

The house was quiet when they reached home. Corrinne slipped out of her room, her face, flushed with sleep, as pink as the silk negligee she wore.

"There's been a man looking in our windows, tonight. We sent for the police, and I guess he was frightened away. But if you hear any strange sounds, give a yell or something, I'm scared."

"Maybe a tramp," Jack answered. "Everything's locked, isn't it?"

"Night locks and extra bolts and everything. But I don't like the idea."

For just a second, before Sue went to sleep, she remembered that there was a balcony outside of the windows in the room. The entrance to the house, below, had tall columns. Could anyone try to climb up? She decided that no one could.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vance

UNSOCIABLE FIANCE NOT LIKELY TO CHANGE AFTER MARRIAGE—WIFE MUST TACKLE NEW JOB WILLINGLY

Dear Miss Vance: I am engaged to a young man two years my senior and we have been going to gether for two years. I love him and know that he loves me but there is something that worries me. He doesn't want to see anybody else but me. He says he prefers to be alone with me, and when I insist on making him join a party or go to see some friends of mine, he simply refuses to utter a word. I am terribly uncomfortable when my friends try to make a fuss about him and he deliberately refuses to talk. He acts a little bit different with his own friends, but he has so few that this doesn't help. People tell me that he will change after marriage. Do you think this is true?

E. H.

Afraid he won't change much E. H. Marriage can't work miracles you know and it would obviously take some sort of magic to transform your unsociable young man into the life and soul of the party.

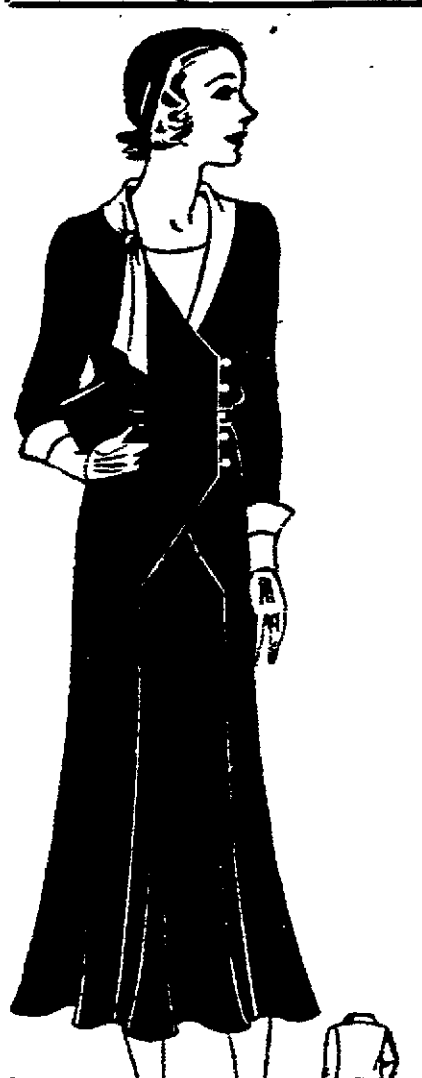

It's true that young fellows in his position are apt to be over-protected by their fair lady's friends. The new bride feels herself on trial with this swart-faced crowd, and this feeling often makes him start from self-consciousness. But this wouldn't account for such a determined policy of isolation as your young man evinces.

He's not a good mixer and it doesn't look as if he ever would be. You've had two years to study him. He's had two years to get used to your friends and to feel at home with them. By this time you ought to understand him thoroughly on this point at least.

If you're going to be miserable without friends and parties, the situation presents real difficulties for you. If you're the type of women who longs for her husband to be popular and sociable, you'll suffer a great many heartaches and find many causes for complaint in the years to come. Better figure out whether the social side of the game means as much to you as your fiancé does.

If you feel you can be happy without the parties, then you have nothing to worry about. But don't imagine that you can change your retiring boy friend into a good

Newly Rich Wife Should Do Her Share

EVE: Yes your husband has the right to demand that you run his house in keeping with your new position in life and it's very bad sportsmanship for you to lie down on the job.

In the days when neither of you had any money, you were a good wife. You loved cooking and house-keeping of all sorts and you threw yourself into the job with a real zest. But you can't rest now on your laurels. You were the right kind of wife then, and you've got to go on being the right kind of wife.

It wouldn't help your husband in the slightest now for you to cook and wash and clean. He needs a new kind of cooperation. He wants you to manage servants and to give dinner parties and to make yourself a successful hostess. It's a hard job because you haven't been trained for it—but it's just as much part of your business as the house-work was in the old days.

If you fairly refuse to do your part, you'll lose your husband's respect and admiration. He's meeting new people continually. He's able

USE MAKE-UP TO SUIT YOUR SPECIAL TYPE

BY ALICIA HART

Choose your cosmetics to complement your "type." Every one of us had a particular style of beauty which is original within ourselves and it should be "played up" in our makeup, coiffure, perfume and clothes.

The small, naive type of woman should realize that her chief charm lies in being unsophisticated and so modestly lovely. She should never strive for "dash" or for exotic clothes and makeup. If you belong to this type, make the most of it. Dress your hair softly and becomingly around your face. Never pull it back into a tight knot—curls may be fascinating at the back of your neck. Very light powder, or even white, will be flattering and pinkish rouge and lipstick is usually best if you are blond. If you are a petite brunette, you will, of course, use darker powder and rouge than a blonde but carry out the same ideas of unsophisticated charm. Perfume should be delicate single flower scents. Leave the heavy amber-base odors to the types which are your opposites.

There is the fresh out-door type of woman who is always full of healthy, normal, well-being to any room she enters. If you belong to that type, don't drape yourself in frilly, fussy clothes. You don't have to be strictly tailored but your natural charm will be enhanced if you stick to simple things. Your makeup should be light and never overdone. You probably won't need to do a thing with your eyes—why use eyeshadow and mascara if there is a healthy gleam in them anyway?

If you are a Spanish brunette or any other truly sophisticated type, don't wear too many sports clothes and remember that you can "get away" with a heavy, exotic perfume, so why not? As long as your cosmetics are the most becoming textures and shades and are applied correctly, you can use more makeup than any other type. However, very often it is fascinating to wear only powder, lipstick and eyeshadow, omitting the rouge.

Everyone belongs to some type. It may not be very definite and you may have to ponder for months trying to decide to just what type you belong, but when you do decide, stick to it! It's much more fun, and certainly more interesting, to be one thing rather than a pleasant but indefinite mixture.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

Left-over vegetables can be combined with onion and celery for seasoning and cooked for 25 minutes in two cups of water and a tasty and wholesome soup results.

When roasting a ham in a double-roaster, sear it first on both sides, before putting on the cover. By this process of baking the juices are retained.

Have the soot removed from your kitchen range if you wish to obtain the best results in baking.

to observe that other women have taken hold and made a success of being good managers as well as good housekeepers. And if you present an unfavorable contrast to his new friends, he's bound to grow away from you.

Make a real effort to overcome your aversion to the new mode of living. You're hating it chiefly because you're not qualified yet to do the job well. Once you get into the swing of it, you'll manage to enjoy it. Be a good sport and make the best of what comes along. Hundreds of women would give anything for your chance.

PUTTING AN ACE TO SLEEP

According to popular fancy and, in fact, general experience, the Ace King and Queen of a suit are certain to take tricks against a no-trump declaration at Contract. This principle, however, is modified by the time factor which paradoxically in Bridge as in life, makes pignions of giants and giants of pignions. A hand, played some months ago in a Contract Bridge Tournament at Uniontown, Pennsylvania, gives point to these observations.

2—South denies the possession of more than a minimum bid by his no-trump response.

3—North is in doubt as to whether to play the hand to take 9 tricks or 11. South's hand may not have protection in hearts as his minimum response might show a hand in which the high cards were the club Ace King and the diamond King. The notrump road to game seems the safer gamble.

In the play, West lacking a single face card had no desirable lead. The choice was between the two major suits, neither of which had been bid, and lacking any indication of his partner's holding, he selected a spade. Had a heart been chosen,

GETS CASH ERE BANK FAILED—THIEF LUCKY

Chicago—(AP)—Nicholas Perisich got to his bank one day last June just before it failed and withdrew his $11,000 in savings.

"I was just lucky," he told his friends Thursday a burglar entered his home, found the $10,000 in an old trunk, took the money and walked away.

Variety Of Leading Pictures Booked For Showing In This City

CAGNEY PLAYS IN "BLONDE CRAZY"

Picture Will Be Shown Three Days at Appleton Theatre

James Cagney, who thrilled you not so long ago in "The Public Enemy" comes to the Appleton Theatre Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in a very different play, "Blonde Crazy." Cagney, who also features blonde and brittle Joan Blondell. The two began their screen careers together in "Sinners' Holiday" but they are teamed for the first time in "Blonde Crazy."

Cagney, who so cleverly evidenced his genius for comedy in the bit in "The Millionaire" when he played a high-powered insurance salesman—gets a chance to display it royally as a sharp-tongued bellhop in "Blonde Crazy." Many of the exciting scenes are laid in the peacock alley of a big hotel, which is a meeting-place for shady ladies and gents of all descriptions who are in the business of making easy money. Bert the bellhop decides to beat them at their own game—and proceeds to do it with such whirling dervish that he enlists the aid of the blonde in his wise-cracking antics, the bluen girl, Ann—played as only Joan could play it.

"Blonde Crazy" is by no means all comedy—it has much of the melodramatic—which Cagney handles in his own unique way. An interesting fact lies in the authorship of the piece. Though so different from "The Public Enemy" and "Smart Money"—"Blonde Crazy" is the work of those same geniuses of talkiedom, Kubec Glasmon and John Bright.

The cast includes Louis Calhern, Noel Francis, Guy Kibbee, Raymond Milland, Polly Walters, Charles Levinson, William Burress, Peter Erkelenz, Maude Eburne, Walter Percival and Nat Pendleton. The clever direction is by Roy Del Ruth.

James Cagney presents his seventh talking picture role in "Blonde Crazy." Each portrayal showing a new facet of his talent and he is but twenty-seven years old.

Whatever part Cagney plays is exciting—entertaining—dynamic. Don't miss him in "Blonde Crazy," his best to date.

TEAM ARMSTRONG AND QUILLAN AGAIN

Ginger Rogers Also Plays Part in "The Tip Off" Which Is Coming Here

"The Tip Off" an RKO Pathé presentation starring Eddie Quillan and Robert Armstrong will be the offering of the Appleton theatre next Saturday only.

Fresh from his triumphs as a jockey in the successful "Sweepstakes," Quillan again appears in a fast moving, thrilling and human story. Robert Armstrong, it will be recalled, last teamed with him in "Big Money."

This time Eddie is a radio repair man who falls in love with a girl who inadvertently has fallen into the clutches of a powerful hoodlum of the East Side. How Quillan, with the assistance of his pal, Robert Armstrong, in the role of a mid-dleweight champion boxer, takes the girl away from his rival provides a story crammed full of suspense, action, love interest and drama.

To provide the maximum of entertainment RKO Pathé went the limit for its stars. First the organization selected Albert Regell to direct. Then it assembled a superior supporting cast. Beautiful Joan Peers was cast opposite Quillan. The part of Armstrong's sweetie was given Ginger Rogers, Broadway stage and screen favorite. Pat Harold plays an underworld chieftain, with Charles Selton, Luis Alberni and Mike Donlin in minor roles.

The story, based on an original by George Klotz Turner, was adapted to the screen by Earl Baldwin.

"CISCO KID" BRINGS ROMANCE OF ARIZONA

Warner Baxter Plays With Edmund Lowe in O. Henry Thriller

Bringing romance into the lives of millions, the screen today exerts far more influence than any other medium of entertainment," according to Warner Baxter, who is featured with Edmund Lowe in O. Henry's "The Cisco Kid." Fox action romance of the old Arizona border, coming for 3 days starting Monday at the Fox theatre.

"The Cisco Kid" deals with the Arizona border during the nineties, a locale that only a few people today can recall, and one that is difficult to depict accurately in fiction.

In the film, however, my efforts to avoid the determined pursuit of Edmund Lowe, aimed as it was in the Santa Cruz desert near Tucson, Arizona, and our careful reproduction of a border town of the period make that interesting era clearer to the spectator than any number of books could possibly do.

Conchita Montenegro as the Mexican dancer with whom both Baxter and Lowe fall in love, plays one of the leading feminine roles. Nora Lane contributes the other love interest. The supporting cast includes Charlie Stevens, Frederick Burt, Willard Robertson, James Bradbury Jr. and Chris Martin. Irving Cummings directed the picture.

Look What's Coming, Carnival Dance, Greenville Pav., Sun. Meltz Californians.

Jimmy and Joan in Film

Step right up and meet Mrs. Cagney's red headed wonder, Jimmie and Mrs. Blondell's precocious Joan. They both may be seen at the Appleton Theatre next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday in Warner Bros. "Blonde Crazy." Cagney in a new role is a positive riot while Joan Blondell, his wise-cracking running mate adds much to the charm as well as the action of the story. Others in the cast include Noel Francis, Guy Kibbee and Louis Calhern. Roy del Ruth directed.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY SCORES AS BUTLER

Robert Montgomery turns butler in "The Man in Possession" which opens at the Elite Theatre for 3 days starting Monday.

In his new vehicle the young star appears as the hero of a delightful masquerade, impersonating an English butler to accommodate a dashing young widow-in-distress. In fact, he goes a bit farther, as the story unfolds, also taking the place of her absent lover.

Montgomery is smilingly at ease in even the most disastrous moments of his masquerade and offers perhaps the most engaging performance of his young career. He is entirely personable and not at all incongruous in the farcical role. Charlotte Greenwood tops the supporting cast as the maid-of-all-work who becomes a committee-of-one to watch the new butler's antics with profound suspicion, which is more than justified when she discovers his familiarity with the mistress' boudoir.

Included in the sterling cast are Irene Purcell, C. Aubrey Smith, Beryl Mercer, Reginald Owen and Alan Mowbray, all ideally cast.

Undergraduates at Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, Mo., have started a campaign to have their school called by its correct name instead of "Rolla Mines."

PLENTY OF ACTION IN FILM, "HUSH MONEY"

The old familiar double cross enters largely into the scheme of things in "Hush Money," a Fox production and one of the most entertaining of the year, at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

Owen Moore starts it off by double crossing Joan Bennett, she thinking he is a man of wealth and culture, only to find he is a blackmailer. Later Moore himself double crosses his gang by squealing and sending them, with him, to prison, still later Myrna Loy works the double cross by transferring her affections from C. Henry Gordon to Moore and in the final analysis Douglas Cosgrove as a detective gets the racketeers double crossing themselves.

It's a corking story, written by men who know their rackets. Hardie Albright and Joan Bennett are great in the leads and Owen Moore, C. Henry Gordon, Douglas Cosgrove, Myrna Loy gave fine performances. Sidney Landfield turned in a fine piece of direction.

BANCROFT BATTLED WAY TO PRESENT JOB

Many Adventures Marked Life of Film Star—Served in Navy

Rugged virility!—That's George Bancroft. He stands six feet two, and tips the scale just under the two hundred mark, with not an ounce of adipose.

Bancroft has been an outdoor man from youth. He was born in Philadelphia. The docks were his chosen playground.

Then followed service during the Philippine Rebellion and later in the Boxer flare-up at Tientsing. It was during these trying times that Bancroft first became interested in dramatics. He drafted the talent aboard ship for amateur theatricals and got permission to put on a minstrel show.

One day in 1900 the Oregon struck a submerged rock off Chefoo Light-house, near Peking. Bancroft and a member of the crew of another vessel, volunteered to dive under the Oregon and ascertain the extent of the damage. For this feat of daring and skill he was recommended for an Annapolis appointment.

But the confining life imposed by the Naval Academy restrictions drove him wild. He decided to try his talents as an actor. He battled his way to the Broadway stage and quickly gained recognition as a virile and versatile actor. "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "Paid in Full," "Old Bill M. P." and "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" are some of the dramatic successes in which he built his reputation.

He created a new type for the movies—the smiling villain. It went over great and Paramount immediately signed him for a long-term contract.

Bancroft's latest starring picture for Paramount is "Rich Man's Folly," to show at the Appleton theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Frances Dee, Robert Ames and Juliette Compton support him in featured roles.

has given these growers cause for joy by displaying a new wrapper in which to pack pears before shipping. It is a copperized paper and is said to prevent decay.

Montgomery is Hit in Film

Reginald Owen, Robert Montgomery and C. Aubrey Smith in "The Man in Possession" at the Elite Theatre 3 days starting Monday.

COLOR OF AFRICA BROUGHT IN FILM

"Trader Horn" to Show at Elite Theatre Next Week

Love in the midst of the cradle of savagery; a romance amid the perils of the primeval jungles; spectacle, thrills, wild animals in their primitive state; a girl as savage as the beasts themselves, lured to civilization through love of a man from the outer world—these are some of the outstanding elements unfolded in "Trader Horn," playing a return engagement at the Elite Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

Transcribed from the famous book of the old African adventurer and filmed in the heart of Africa's jungles in the greatest motion picture expedition of all time, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production sets a new mark in entertainment. Its drama would make it a powerful thing in itself. Its actual filming and recording of wild animals, savage tribal ceremonies, and other detail makes it the most engrossing adventure film in history.

For the first time one actually hears the voices of the jungle, for the "Trader Horn" expedition carried with it the first and only sound recording apparatus ever to be taken into the Dark Continent.

W. S. Van Dyke put infinite artistry into his direction of the lighter and more whimsical scenes, and gained the utmost in thundering drama in the others. Making it was a gigantic task, but the result will long live as the last word in a drama of gorgeous adventure.

POINTS OUT WHEAT RISE OF 1896 WAS CAUSE OF UPTURN

Babson Calls Attention to Huge Increase in Value as Result of Recent Rise

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass.—The recent rise in wheat, corn, and cotton has in four weeks' time added half a billion dollars to the value of these crops. What farm legislation and the Farm Board failed to do in two years. Nature has done in one month. The expected abnormally large world wheat crop has been changed by wet weather and reduced acreage abroad to a smaller crop than in 1939. Because the United States had a bumper winter wheat crop, people were blinded by conditions in other sections where crops have not done so well, as in Canada, our own Northwest, Germany,

France, and Russia. At the same time the threat of war between Japan and China in which Russia might become involved has led to speculative buying of wheat. It is still too early to tell just how much below a year ago the total world output will be. Present reports of damage may be exaggerated. Reports from the United States are to be expected. However, enough is known to change the picture of prices from one of utter gloom to one of hopeful improvement.

Will 1931 prove a repetition of 1896? News of foreign crop troubles in the autumn turned wheat prices up from 53 cents a bushel in August to 94 cents in November, just before the election of President Mc-Kinley. Wheat prices then were credited with swinging the election and with turning the tide of business upward from one of the worst depressions in history. Bryan's managers issued a statement in October that the Republican "money power" was putting up wheat prices to fool the farmers until after the election.

At any rate, as wheat went up, free silver ideas went down, and the farmers went Republican. It may be that crop prices will do for business and for Mr. Hoover what they did for Bryan and for Mr. Mc-Kinley in 1896-97.

Lifts Gloom

Whatever the underlying causes of the recent price advances, they certainly will cause much better feeling in the farming sections.

Business sentiment elsewhere is being helped because the farm market is extremely important to nearly all business. The new crop of United States wheat is around $84,

000,000 bushels, and the carry-over of old crop around 319,000,000 bushels. Increase of about 18 cents a bushel in four weeks from October 5 to November 5 brought a gain in total wheat value of $229,

991,000. Moreover, the price increase comes at a particularly fortunate time because the farmers have still a lot of wheat on hand. The 400,

000,000 bushels estimated remaining in the farmers' possession have increased in value $73,000,000. Corn which on October 5 was selling for 33 cents a bushel had gained 8 cents by November 5, bringing a total gain in value of the crop of $222,997,000. This is certainly a big boost to the Corn Belt.

Cotton in the first week of October sold at 5.22 cents per pound. With 16,284,000 bales of new crop and a carry-over of 6,700,000 bales, the advance to around 6.50 cents by November 5 meant a total cotton gain of $135,605,000. Price advances have been in value $73,000,000. Corn
